

County Officers Likely to Be Renominated

John C. Siegmund, Recorder.

John W. Roland, Clerk.

Chas. Lembcke, Assessor.

E. T. Moores, School Supt.

B. B. Colbath, Sheriff.

A. M. Clough, Coroner.

HOW HANNA BECAME AN ORATOR

A writer in the Chicago Journal who was with the late Senator Hanna a good deal in his several campaigns, as a representative of several newspapers given a very entertaining account of his first efforts in speech-making. The first, so far as known, that he ever made, at least after he became famous was at the Chicago convention just as the campaign of 1896 was closing. The great hall was packed, and after several more or less eloquent spellbinders had spoken, there was a loud and long call for "Hanna." He was very reticent to take the platform, but finally when they would not be quieted and would listen to no one else, he walked down to the footlights and said:

"It's all right boys. We're going to win. You see I haven't any hoofs and horns, and there are no dollar signs in my clothes. I thank you."

His second effort was made at a banquet given after the victory was won, at the Waldorf-Astoria, and the third was four years later at the stock yards in Chicago. Congressman "Billy" Lorimer was making the fight for his life in that district and was being worsted. There was an immense crowd at one of his meetings, but it had come to jeer and not to listen.

"The crowd had been 'loose' for nearly an hour when Hanna arrived, every effort that Lorimer and others had made to speak Hanna was greeted with jeers, and from the back of the tent came profanity, insults and continuous uproar. Hanna stood leaning upon his cane and looked the crowd squarely in the eye, like a tam or of wild beasts. There was a momentary pause, and he started to speak, whereupon bedlam broke loose and raged with increased fury. Holding up his hand he started to speak again. Those nearer the stage were silent for curiosity, but again the hoodlums at the back drowned the speech.

"That was the beginning of a battle royal between Hanna and the mob, the latter determined that he should not be permitted to make a speech, and he was equally determined to reduce the mob to silence. And he won. It took him thirty minutes by the watch—thirty minutes of struggle, taking every advantage to win or subdue, improving every momentary lull, getting in a word here and a sentence there, answering a jeer, appealing to reason, never losing his patience, never flinching, tactful, virile, sensible, persuasive, until at last the crowd ceased its howlings and heard. He talked an hour longer.

"The words came in a torrent. There was no effort at ornamentation; there was nothing flamboyant, and there was no sham. The crowd would have detected the false ring in a moment, and his work would have been lost. But he held them by the power of a fair, reasonable, truth-telling mind and by the respect which the wildest and most uncouth will accord to real courage and real strength.

"That was Hanna. He had found a voice for his personality. I have heard him speak many times since, principally in the chamber of the United States senate; but never when so much of the character of the man was brought to view as in that encounter with the stock yards mob.

Opposed to a "Crush," (Exchange.)

"Old Adam Forepaugh," said a friend to a veteran showman, "once had a big white parrot that had learned to say.

"'One at a time, gentlemen—one at a time—don't crush.'"

"The bird had, of course, acquired this sentence from the ticket-taker of the show. Well, one day the parrot got lost in the country, and Mr. Forepaugh leaped into the buggy and started out posthaste to hunt for it.

"People here and there who had seen the parrot directed him in his quest, and finally as he was driving by a cornfield, he was overjoyed to hear a familiar voice.

"He got out and entered the field, and found the parrot in the middle of a flock of crows that had pecked him till he was almost featherless. As the crows bit and nipped away, the parrot lying on his side, repeated over and over:

"'One at a time, gentlemen—one at a time—don't crush.'"

Young Yeomanry Officer (airing his exploits in the late war)—And among other things, don't you know, I had a horse shot under me. Fair Ignoramus—Poor thing! What was the matter with it?—Punch.

Muggins—I hear that Greening's new melodrama has no villain in it. Criticus—It doesn't require any. The play itself is villainous.—Chicago Daily News.

PROMINENT POLITICAL PEOPLE

(Continued from Page Fourteen.)

Marion County was given him in 1900, and he was elected by a majority of about 1100 in June of that year. Since that time he has made an excellent record for the office, and is looked upon as one of the most successful men ever in that position in Marion County.

Prof. Moores is married and has a comfortable home in South Salem. He is a member of Silver Lodge No. 21, I. O. O. F. and Pine Camp No. 198 W. O. W. both of Silverton, in both of which he stands high.

Positive Proof

We Do What We Claim

And guarantee sufficient proof that Dr. J. F. Cook the Botanical Doctor cures all kinds of diseases after all other schools and doctors have failed, such as cancer, tumors, (external and internal) Gravel, kidney, bone diseases, Consumption, gall stones, rheumatism, dropsy, and diabetis, appendicitis have never yet failed, and female diseases, all the foregoing without the knife, or plaster or poisons, and with no pain to the patient whatever. He secures his herbs from which he manufactures his medicines. They are composed of natures herbs gathered and selected in various parts of America and Foreign countries at a great expense. All can be proved with sworn testimonials of prominent people. Consultation free.

Dr. J. F. Cook

301 Liberty St., Salem, Oregon
Formerly of Omaha, Neb.

Pianos, Organs, Piano Players

Yes, we have them and can please you, not only in the instrument itself, but in price and terms.

PIANOS

In this department are the greatest number of strictly high grade makes carried by any house west of Chicago. Here you will find the Knabe, Packard, Hardman, Steck, Everett, Mason & Hamlin, Fischer, Ludwig, Cable, Kingsbury Hamilton, Harrington, Smith & Barnes, Wellington, Willard, Martin and a score of others. All are sold on the easy payment plan and are fully guaranteed.

ORGANS

Here you will find the world renowned Mason & Hamlin, the old reliable Estay, the ever popular Chicago Cottage, and the Packard, the organ with the sweet tone.

PIANO PLAYERS

We have the exclusive agency for the Pacific Northwest of the "Hardman Player," acknowledged to be the most satisfactory player in the market today. It has all the good points of the others besides many patents that belong exclusively to it. With the Hardman you can have at your command all the compositions of the great masters, besides the popular music of the day. Come in and hear this the greatest wonder of the age.

SLIGHTLY USED GOODS

We have several slightly used organs which are just as good as new, in fact you could not tell them from new if we did not tell you different, which we will sell at almost our own price and terms that will please you. We also have one or two pianos that have been out on rent, for which we have received quite a sum, give you the benefit of which we have received. Remember these are all strictly high grade makes, and it will pay you to investigate.

Allen & Gilbert-Ramaker Company

299 Commercial Street

Salem, Oregon

The BEE HIVE

Salem's Cheapest Cash Store

When we say cheapest we mean that we sell shoes, clothing, ladies and gents furnishing goods and notions cheaper than any other store in Salem.

In footwear we handle one of the best lines made in America. The famous B. J. and R. Star Brand and we can safely say that we have not yet found its equal. If you have not had the good luck to try a pair ask your neighbors, perhaps they have tried them; if they have not come in yourself. One trial will be sure to convince you that we are telling the truth. Come and see us whether you buy or not, we want to get acquainted with you; we want a share of your patronage. We know that we can convince you that we sell cheaper than the big stores. Clothing for men and boys, underwear; Hata for a dollar that are sold in the big stores for $1.50, and many other articles in the same proportion.

Our expenses are much less than any other store of the kind in Salem; we do our own work, no clerks to pay. We all have an interest in the business, that is why we strive so hard to please. Again I invite you to come and see us, and see how nice we will treat you.

Remember the place The Bee Hive, 304 Commercial street, the building the post office moved out of last June.

GEORGE MELSON
PROPRIETOR